

We lay many portion of the earth under contribution, almost in every hour

Thus we find that every country has its peculiar products; that the possession and use of these are necessary, or at least desirable to the full enjoyment of existence, and that men are stimulated by the wish for that possession, to pass from climate to climate, and from region to region, and thus establish intercourse between all the nations of this world, but the mere act of visiting dis-seminates will not suffice to gain the things that are desired, nothing is generally either absolute or edifying prepared for use, and the country to which it is sent is not prepared to receive it. There will be no security in your trans-acting with those people who come in and take away your property without giving you anything in return. They are but thieves and robbers, and you will be ruined by their depredations. Therefore, if you wish to trade with them, you must first make them honest, and then you will be able to trade with them on equal terms. This is the only way to success in trade with the heathen.

Poetry and Science.—The power of the mind, in the fervour of poetical composition, flows like a mountain torrent; sparkling, foaming, beautiful and grand; but passing principally over rocks, and nourishing only the solitary tree, or the flowers of its mossy borders. The energy of the understanding employed upon the development of the truths of nature has a calm and quiet progress; in its motion it is like the navigable river; it bears upon its ships; it waters a fertile country; and what it wants its beauty possesses in benefit; what is deficient in rapidity is supplied in strength. Our friends in Tuscarawas, will hope, judge of the future by the present. Our late defeat was solely owing to the apathy we were in, while the dining knife was making havoc among us; it is however a lesson for us, it will bring back to our minds that long gotten motto "United we stand, divided we fall."

Judge Buel arrived here on Saturday, the 21st ult. on his way to N. Haven, where he had been invited to deliver an address on the following Wednesday, before the Agricultural Society. In the evening he complained of being somewhat fatigued, and retired to rest at an early hour, and before morning had a violent attack of bilious cholera. An experienced physician was called in, by whose prescription he soon obtained relief, and was regarded as convalescent; but before he had regained sufficient strength to return to his family, a fever set in, and in an
